

PRANNETS

Matthew Andrews

Although root pressure may push water to the leaves of low-growing plants, it is insufficient to elevate water to hundreds of feet about the soil as in some trees. To accomplish such an engineering feat, a pulling force, generated in leaves, supplements the work done by roots.

- Brian Capon, Botany for Gardeners

He hath not fail'd to pester us with message
Importing the surrender of those lands

- Hamlet (Claudius, Act 1, Scene 2)

His other miraculous perfections are still in abeyance: and his monstrous excellencies in the predicament of Chimera.

- Harvey, Pierce's Supererogation
